Astrid Baenziger. born in 1965.

Starting with drawing comics, she has expanded widely to an intensive examination of various techniques of acrylic painting and collage technique.

Her paintings and collages are done in part with figurative motifs, in part abstract works of art. So you can find exploding flowergardens, nostalgic clotheslines, pictures inscribed with poems, or even comics that win your heart - just to name a few.

For several years now Astrid Baenziger has shown her works of art in solo- and group exhibitions. In October 2015 she showed her

Astrid Baenziger lives with her Family in Berne, Switzerland. (Who wrote it?)

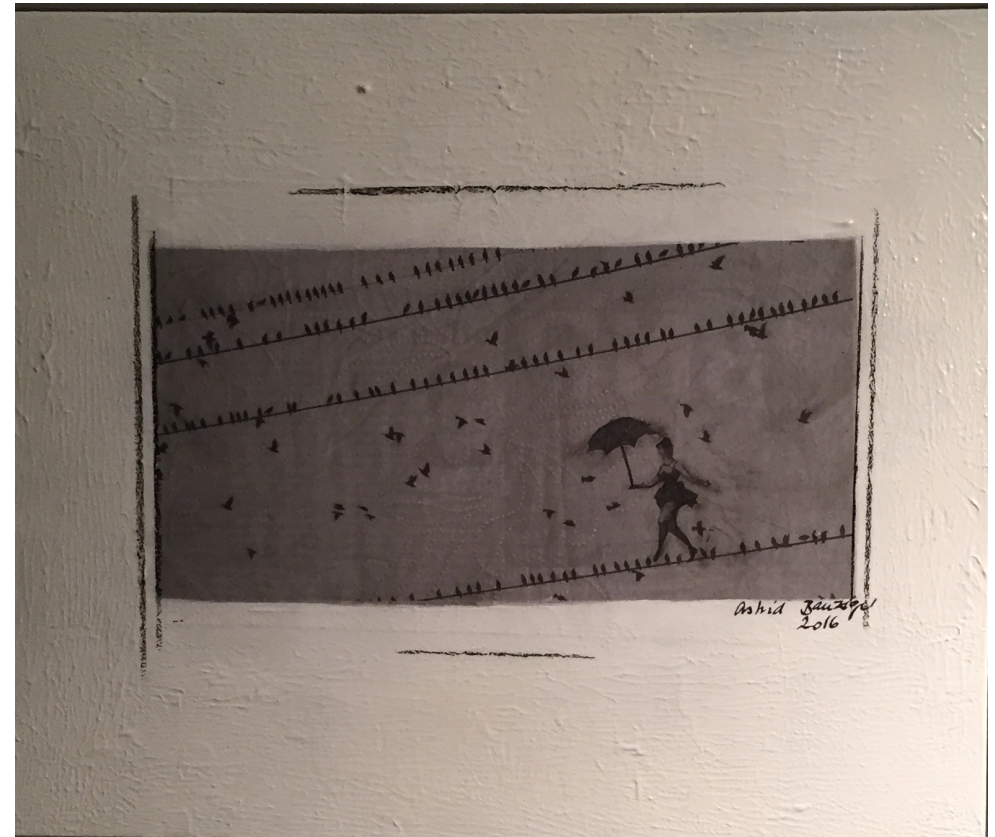

"My images are designed through their colours and their representations to conjure happiness, to elicit a smile in the beholder, and are now and then seen with a wink! The images are life, devotion and joy of life."

In the artwork „HEAVENLY EXCURSIONS“ she transfers the longing to wanna be closer to beloved people who died. A girl is walking on the telephon wire full of birds between earth and heaven. She is communicating with the birds and she is in interaction with the people who past away. She's part of the big secret of the universe. Material: Acrylic painting/collage/copied photo on a newspaper with an interview of a medium on the backside. (Who wrote it?)
