It was a coincidence what brought me to the painting. I love classical music and concerts, so I once went to classical music concert in castle Jemniště, where I bought two small pictures and until home I found out who painted them. Italian painter, now my mentor, Silvia Vezzuto, who teaches me for 5 years now.

My paintings are regularly showcased in the gallery U Zlatého Kohouta, Prague 1. It's such a dear place to my heart, because there is a friendly atmosphere and which gives novice painters courage to exhibit.

I like to paint portraits of historical motifs and images. I admire the beauty and details of period clothes and jewelry, which you often see in my paintings inspired by great painters.

My paintings are found in private collections in Spain, Italy, Germany, England and Asia. My greatest achievement is painting which I gifted to Her Majesty english queen Elizabeth II. I painted her portrait from a photograph and added roses Gloria Dei. The name of the rose means greetings to virgin Mary. I added the roses with the idea of respect and greetings to Her Majesty Elizabeth II. To my greatest surprise, Her Majesty accepted the gift and I received letter of thanks.
